

A Tall Boy Stick-lamp

by Bob Schroth

The Shanklin Manufacturing Co. Made a wide variety of carbide lamps for mining use. When looking through early ads from the company you can see how they made a light to fit almost every need. From the small cap lamps to the larger aptly named Tall Boy line to the Square Lite and the largest Hand lamps.

A rare early stick-lamp. Guy's Dropper 2-date model. Gilt pain still present, even over portions of the sharpened steel hook.

Shanklin's Carbide Lamps

These lamps are made in a wide variety of styles, as described below.

The outstanding feature of all lamps is the Guy Patented Water Dropper, which was perfected several years ago by Mr. Frank Guy, a practical miner, and we have used it for eight years in our lamps, during which time it has proved to be a most accurate and thorough device for feeding water to our Carbide Lamps.

A feature of the Guy Water Dropper is the Valve Cleaner, which is a knurled thimble put on the dropper between the button and the end of the dropper tube. If dirty water is used and the dropper becomes clogged, a few turns of the valve cleaner with the fingers will open it up.
