

New Lamp Found

By the time this magazine reaches you, a new carbide lamp will have publicly surfaced. Our spies tell us that this is the Kerst patent lamp of Springfield, Illinois. Paul Kouts' MCLR IV shows a patent drawing:

U.S. patent #1,016,275
Feb. 6, 1912
Henry Kerst
Springfield, Illinois

This lamp was shown at the recent Morgantown, WV show. We will look forward to presenting a formal article and photos in the near future.

Rare Lamp Found

Although not unheard of, this extremely rare oil wick was found by Jim Lackey, proving that "it's still out there"! The stamping is shown above.

Corrections/Apologies

In the last issue we neglected to mention Steve and Malia Rush as planners and organizers of the June show in Frisco, Colorado. Their contribution to the show was a monumental effort. It was solely my (Dave Thorpe's) absentmindedness that was to fault.

The first article in our last issue (Shipwrecked Ingots) was written by Steve Roberts, not Steve Smith.

In Werner Horning's article on miner's uniform/dress, the complete name of the Chief Inspector of Mines should have read: Siegmund August Wolfgang Freiherr von Herder.
